Vinyl Floors

Pacific Domes offers a Heavy Duty vinyl floor that curves up the side wall in order to keep standing water out. For colder climates, we recommend an insulated floor, using Thinsulate* sandwiched between two layers of vinyl. Vinyl floors are available in many colors. The above cream colored floor worked well with the salt flat in Bolivia!

Winterizing

Lite Liners: Our Lite liners are luminescent and allow solar passive heating. They are made with a fire retardant, water resistant, easy to clean, Oxford Nylon. They hang inside the frame and create a dead air space between the main cover and the liner, hiding the frame. All windows are duplicated for thermopane.

Insulated Liners: Our insulated liner is made of 2 layers of a mildew/water resistant, easy to clean, fire retardant Oxford Nylon with an insulation material, Thinsulate®, wedged between. They are easy to install and attach to the inside of the frame, keeping your dome temperatures comfortable. The Thinsulate® has an R-value of 3, which is greatly increased by the space between the outer cover and the liner as well as the 2 layers of Oxford Nylon.

Thermoshield® Insulating Paint

Thermoshield is a non-toxic, elastomeric paint that contains ceramic borosilicate microspheres, a technology used on the space shuttles by NASA. Because it is 99.98% reflective, it has up to an equivalent R-value of 22. When applied to your dome, it will reflect UV off your dome keeping it cooler in the summer as well as reflect your heat source back into the living space. Below amounts are recommended by the Thermoshield company although we have found effectivity using half these amounts. The prices below reflect $75 per gallon and do not include shipping and handling.
